Buy with Confidence

Because the quality of medical gases cannot be determined except by accurate chemical analysis and these products are purchased and used sight unseen, CONFIDENCE must be placed in the Manufacturer. Back of the "Puritan Maid" label on every cylinder, identifying the products of the Puritan Compressed Gas Corporation, is a reputation earned through many years of service to the Profession, during which time we have grown to be one of the largest producers of these products in the world.

Testing FOR CO<sub>2</sub> ABSORPTION

TESTING of Wilson Soda Lime and other gas absorbents is done on our principal testing machine, shown here. It is a combination of four artificial lungs and four to-and-fro filters, exactly reproducing the lung action of an average patient, and was designed in accordance with the principles set forth in "Experimental Studies on Carbon Dioxide Absorbers for Anesthesia" (Anesthesiology, Jan. '41). It makes possible the determination of CO<sub>2</sub> absorption within 0.1%.

Repeated tests have shown the high efficiency of Wilson Soda Lime in CO<sub>2</sub> absorption. Its longer life before reaching an exhaustion point means more economical use. Constantly improved over the years, safe, efficient, economical Wilson Soda Lime is the accepted standard of the medical profession.

Ether

The House of Squibb has long been recognized as the pioneer in the production of anesthetic ether. Now, as always, it makes ether for anesthesia only.

For over eighty-six years Squibb Ether has been used by surgeons and physicians all over the world. They have used it with justified confidence in its uniformity. They have recognized its reliability. They know that its use is sound insurance.

Cyclopropane

As an * inhalation anesthetic agent, Cyclopropane offers the advantages of decreased pulmonary irritation, less excitement during induction and low toxicity, while permitting an abundant supply of oxygen.

The high quality of Cyclopropane Squibb has been demonstrated not alone by chemical and biological tests in the laboratory, but by extensive clinical experience in many of the leading hospitals of the country.

Cyclopropane Squibb is available in 40 (AA); 100 (B); and 200 (D) gallon special light-weight cylinders . . . easier to handle . . . less costly to ship.

GENERAL PROBLEMS IN ANESTHESIA

ROBERT L. PATTERSON, M.D.

Director Department of Anesthesia, Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pa.

There are certain duties of the anesthetist preliminary to the administration of the anesthetic agent or agents that are important and may influence greatly the success or failure of the anesthesia.

The history of previous operative procedures with reference to the anesthetic agents and methods used may give valuable information to the anesthetist on the choice of the agent or method to be used in the present contemplated operative procedure. This may be available from previous admission records and if not, the patient's own reaction to the previous anesthesia can be elicited. Because of illness or injury the oxygen transport mechanism of the surgical patient is frequently defective. The anesthetist must evaluate every patient's physical status in terms of ability to deliver oxygen to the central nervous system. The history, physical and laboratory examinations are searched for indications of defective oxygen delivery. Has there been bleeding? What is the quantity of hemoglobin, the number of red cells, the functional capacity of the heart, the pulse pressure, the condition of the arteries? Is there a history of pneumonia, pulmonary tuberculosis or fibrosis?

The physical status of the individual to be anesthetized should be known. This can usually be determined from the physical examination. The status of the cardiovascular and respiratory systems, and the type of operation contemplated are taken into consideration from the standpoint of the anesthetist.

Read at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Nurse
Anesthetists held in Pittsburgh, April 12 and 13, 1944.

Preanesthetic Medication

Preanesthetic medication is valuable in bringing the patient to a state in which so far as possible, fear, apprehension, and resistance to anesthesia are minimized. In dealing with the adult patient, preanesthetic medication is begun the night before operation. A frequently used drug is pentobarbital sodium (nembutal) in the dose of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  grains (0.1 gram) by mouth at bedtime, and this dose is repeated the next morning at least ninety minutes prior to the scheduled operative time. Approximately thirty to forty minutes before operation, morphine sulphate grain  $\frac{1}{6}$  (0.01 gram) and atropine sulphate grain  $\frac{1}{150}$  (0.00043 gram) or scopolamine grain  $\frac{1}{150}$  (0.00043 gram) is given. Variation from this dosage depends upon the patient, his physical condition, the anesthetic and the operation contemplated, also history of idiosyncrasies on the part of the patient. Infants and small children do not always tolerate morphine well, but the majority of children will tolerate small doses of morphine. Some risk may be present in children but it is not necessarily serious, but one must have utmost confidence in the individual responsible for mixing and administering morphine to children. Occasionally miscalculation of the dosage has occurred, and the untoward results are more difficult to treat in children than in adults.

Sedatives and narcotics as well as anesthetic agents have similar effects upon the mechanism of respiration. Almost without exception they depress the respiratory center, decreasing minute volume exchange. Obstruction to ventilation likewise is an indirect result of many pharmacologic effects. Anoxia, therefore, may have its beginning in too heavy pre-anesthetic medication.

Anoxia

The anesthetist must ever be concerned with asphyxia and its consequences. When its approach is marked by cyanosis, it is easily perceived. When it appears in the presence of low hemoglobin, it may be unnoticed. Asphyxia is quick to take advantage of carelessness and unskillfulness, and at times of circumstances beyond our control.

Normal oxygen tensions are troublesome to maintain during anesthesia, one extreme or the other being common. Danger is certainly inherent in shortage of oxygen and it may be in excess as well, though lack is, of course, by far the more serious of the two.

The body does not contain a sufficient reserve store of oxygen in the tissues beyond that contained in the blood. Lack of oxygen produces first a transient stimulus to breathing, but anoxia of the respiratory center quickly results in failure. By stimulation of the vasomotor center the heart beat is accelerated and an elevation in blood pressure is produced. Most of the unfortunate results of nitrous oxide anesthesia can be attributed to anoxia. Delayed effects of importance in the postanesthetic period are chiefly edema of the general body tissues, nausea, vomiting, and mental depression.

Atelectasis

Many theories have been advanced as to the etiological factors involved in the production of atelectasis. In most cases postoperative atelectasis is caused by a mechanical obstruction; that is, actual plugging of a bronchus or several bronchi by tenacious secretions which have collected in the tracheobronchial tree during anesthesia, by mucopurulent material which was present preoperatively, or by mucus, blood, or vomitus which has been aspirated into the trachea either during or after anesthesia.

The symptoms of postoperative atelectasis usually follow a rather definite pattern. The patient complains of dyspnea, which is frequently out of proportion to the degree of pulmonary involvement present, the pulse becomes rapid, there is a sudden increase in temperature, and cyanosis becomes apparent. The degree of cyanosis depends upon the amount of pulmonary tissue involved. Physical signs may or may not be present.

By far the most important treatment is preventive. Preoperative sedation may have an effect on the development of pulmonary complications. Heavy doses of morphine depress respiration and diminish volume exchange; and large doses of atropine and scopolamine may be responsible for the drying of secretions which are present until they become so tenacious that the ciliated epithelium is unable to move them into the trachea.

If atelectasis does occur postoperatively, the bronchial obstruction should be removed as soon as possible; for from atelectasis that is allowed to exist for many hours, secondary pneumonitis or pulmonary suppuration is likely to develop. When ordinary measures such as inhalation of carbon dioxide and oxygen, frequent turning of the patient and coughing do not result in relieving the atelectasis, then it is necessary to resort to bronchoscopy.

Balanced Anesthesia

The reason for the use of a combination of anesthetic agents and methods is to avoid, as far as possible, having the patient respire a mixture low in oxygen content. When nitrous oxide-oxygen is used alone, a low oxygen percentage must be used. When the nitrous oxide-oxygen mixture is fortified with ether, the oxygen content can be considerably increased. With the combination of nitrous oxide-oxygen and ether, the burden of pain relief is borne by both of the anesthetic agents.

Local block or infiltration combined with one of the inhalation agents or with pentothal sodium will eliminate the psychic factor in certain individuals.

For abdominal surgery, and especially for surgery in the upper abdomen, several methods of combined or balanced anesthesia may be used,—abdominal block and cyclopropane or ethylene and oxygen, or spinal anesthesia and pentothal sodium and oxygen. Various blocks such as splanchnic, paravertebral and epidural may also be combined with pentothal sodium or with one of the inhalation agents. Most of these combinations will produce adequate relaxation for surgery of the upper abdomen.

In cases where pentothal sodium is being used and the anesthesia is not adequate or the patient is requiring large amounts of pentothal, the addition of nitrous oxide and oxygen in a 50-50 or 60-40 mixture will balance the anesthesia so that the desired results may be achieved with safety.

Summary

Some of the more important problems in anesthesia have been discussed, such as preanesthetic medication, anoxia, atelectasis, and balanced anesthesia. A thorough knowledge of physiology and the pharmacological action of drugs will enable the anesthetist to prevent or to cope adequately with these problems when they arise.

VINETHENE

RALPH W. CLARK, Ph.D.

More than a decade ago C. D. Leake and his co-workers, P. K. Knoefel and A. E. Guedel, while giving consideration to the chemical and pharmacological properties of ethylene and ether, suggested that a compound comprising the chemical characteristics of each would be an anesthetic agent worth studying. Upon their direct suggestion and request, R. T. Major of Princeton University and later of Merck & Co., Inc., with W. L. Ruigh of the same company, undertook the chemical preparation of pure divinyl ether, a project in which they were successful. This product was subjected to pharmacological and clinical trial in order to ascertain its advantages and disadvantages. Since this original research, many other clinical cases have been reported proving that vinethene, or divinyl ether, is an efficient inhalation anesthetic, particularly suitable for operations of short duration and for induction prior to ether anesthesia, and for supplementing nitrous oxide or ethylene anesthesia, in order to obtain greater relaxation and eliminate cyanosis.

Vinethene consists of about 96.5 per cent of pure vinyl ether ( $\text{CH}_2\text{:CH}$ )<sub>2</sub>O, together with about 3.5 per cent of absolute alcohol and 0.01 per cent of an oxidation inhibitor. The alcohol is added to prevent freezing of moisture which accumulates on masks or in gas machines, due to the cold induced by the high volatility of vinyl ether. The oxidation inhibitor is introduced to offset rapid decomposition on exposure to light or air.

Vinethene is a clear, virtually colorless liquid with a faint purple fluorescence and a characteristic odor. It has a boiling point of 28° to 31° C. (82.4 to 87.8° F.). Because it decomposes when exposed to light or air, particularly in the presence of acid fumes, vinethene should be kept in tightly stoppered containers and stored in a cool, dark place.

If properly stored, as indicated, unopened bottles of vinethene will keep without deterioration for at least two years. The expiration date is printed on the label of each bottle. Since exposure to air may induce decomposition, vinethene should not be used for anesthesia after the container has been opened for more than twenty-four hours. However, recent laboratory tests and clinical experience indicate that vinethene, under ordinary precautions, remains stable for at least ten days after the container has been opened.

The salient features of vinethene include high potency and almost complete absence of any tendency to produce postanesthetic nausea or vomiting. Compared with ethyl ether, the anesthetic potency of vinethene is about 7:1. Induction with this agent is extremely rapid, the patient usually losing consciousness within one minute and surgical anesthesia being obtained in two to three minutes. With proper administration, induction not only is rapid, but also exceptionally smooth. During the second stage, breath-holding is occasionally encountered but, in general, evidence of any form of excitement is minimal. After short periods of anesthesia, in which vinethene has been used as the sole anesthetic agent, return to consciousness and complete orientation usually occur within two to four minutes. Recovery seldom is complicated by nausea or vomiting, and the incidence of postoperative pulmonary sequelae is extraordinarily low. Should respiratory arrest occur during the course of anesthesia, cessation of administration of the anesthetic agent, establishment of a patent airway, and institution of artificial respiration, in conjunction with the administration of oxygen, bring about prompt recovery.

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that, owing to the rapidity of action of vinethene, the various stages of anesthesia pass in such quick succession that it is extremely difficult to detect the characteristic signs of any individual stage. Thus the handling of this anesthetic differs appreciably from the handling of ethyl ether and other less rapidly acting inhalation anesthetics. Of major importance is the fact that with this anesthetic the eye signs, usually depended on in anesthesia, are entirely unreliable except, perhaps, in the hands of those thoroughly experienced with vinethene. The most important signs in determining the depth of anesthesia are the rate, depth, and regularity of respiration. Respirations become more frequent and shallow during light and moderate anesthesia, and slow and irregular after an overdose. During normal surgical anesthesia, respirations are regular and full. As with other anesthetic agents, it is essential that a patent and free airway be maintained throughout the period of administration. Should respiratory arrest due to overdosage occur, it may be treated by stopping administration of the anesthetic and instituting artificial respiration, after first making certain that the airway is patent. These measures may be supplemented with intermittent inflation of the lungs with oxygen and use of the Trendelenburg position. Fortunately, owing to the rapid elimination of vinethene, prompt recovery follows such measures.

Under no circumstances should the anesthetic be pushed, nor should cyanosis be permitted to occur.

In order to ensure, so far as possible, the safe use of vinethene, the agent is recommended only for operations lasting not more than a half hour.

Because of its volatility and the rapidity with which it is eliminated, vinethene must be administered more or less constantly for the entire period of anesthesia. In hot climates or at high altitude, the increased volatility of the anesthetic somewhat increases the mechanical difficulties of administration.

As with any other anesthetic agent, age, cardiovascular disease, renal insufficiency and degenerative conditions must be given due consideration as contraindications. Vinethene should not be employed in the presence of hepatic damage or multiple sclerosis.

Special caution should be observed with regard to the ambulatory patient. Following recovery from the administration of vinethene, the ambulatory patient should be kept under observation until he appears to be completely oriented and for a period of ten to fifteen minutes thereafter. Fortunately, orientation returns very rapidly.

Vinethene is inflammable to approximately the same degree as ethyl ether and is comparably explosive in combination with other gases. There should never be an open flame in the room when an inflammable anesthetic mixture is employed, nor should the cautery be used.

Respiration becomes more frequent and shallow during light and moderate anesthesia, full and regular during surgical anesthesia, and slow and irregular after an overdose of vinethene. However, due to rapid elimination from the system, the respiratory effects of overdosage can be reversed by withdrawal of the anesthetic and, if necessary, the application of artificial respiration. Since the heart continues to beat for some time after respiration has ceased, recovery may occur even after complete paralysis of respiration, if artificial respiration is maintained. In this respect, the safety of vinethene exceeds that of ethyl chloride, as with the latter anesthetic cardiac failure frequently precedes respiratory arrest.

The blood pressure is not greatly altered during a vinethene anesthesia of moderate depth. During deep anesthesia there is a marked drop, comparable to that during an ethyl ether anesthesia of similar depth. The cardiac rhythm, however, remains regular even when the blood pressure is severely depressed.

A rhythmic, rolling motion of the eyeballs and horizontal nystagmus are frequently observed. These ocular movements may be noted especially during the induction and recovery periods, although they also may be present during the maintenance period. A fixed eyeball usually is indicative of deep anesthesia and may be regarded as a danger signal.

A slight increase in salivation may occur, but when the anesthetic is skillfully handled this is insignificant. Excessive salivation is quite infrequent if the induction is smooth with avoidance of irregular rate of administration. It can be prevented by preanesthetic medication with atropine.

Repeated and prolonged administration of vinethene has been shown to cause liver damage in dogs, most marked in those instances in which cyanosis has been allowed to occur during the administration. However, efforts to reproduce these effects in rats and rabbits have not been successful. In the normal dog, prothrombin deficiency did not occur following one hour of vinethene anesthesia.

In clinical use, carefully administered vinethene anesthesia for periods up to one hour in duration have shown no demonstrable effect on the liver. This has been confirmed by bromsulphalein tests which showed little dye retention and, hence, practically no liver damage as measured by this test. In two series of several hundred vinethene anesthetics, limited to one-half hour and administered by the open drop method, no liver damage was observed. On the other hand, in a few instances in which vinethene has been administered well beyond the advised length of time, liver damage has been reported. If vinethene is administered with pure oxygen instead of with air, the possibility of liver damage is greatly reduced.

While vinethene has a potential toxicity for the liver, this is considerably less than that of chloroform. It is probable that liver damage can be prevented if the following precautions are observed: (1) Restrict the use of vinethene to anesthetics of not more than thirty minutes; if an operation exceeds that time, continue the anesthesia with some other agent; (2) never use vinethene in cases of known or suspected hepatic damage; (3) avoid cyanosis during administration.

Muscular relaxation obtained in vinethene anesthesia is comparable to that during ethyl ether and chloroform anesthesia, and greatly superior to that during nitrous oxide anesthesia. However, as with some other agents, coordinated running movements may occur in animals, especially dogs, even during deep anesthesia, but these usually are preventable by preanesthetic medication with morphine or scopolamine. Clinically, movements of the extremities have been noted in the induction period, particularly in cases in which the anesthetic has been administered rapidly. In long vinethene anesthesia there have been reported rare instances of convulsions during maintenance, which appeared to be similar to those occasionally encountered under ethyl ether anesthesia. Postanesthetic convulsions are rarely seen. No serious effects from convulsions during vinethene anesthesia have been reported.

Vinethene is a convenient and rapidly acting inhalation anesthetic for short anesthetics. It may be administered by the open drop method or by the closed method, with or without the carbon dioxide absorption technique. Because of its high volatility, vinethene must be added continuously to the mask during induction and maintenance, when using the open drop method, in order to maintain an even concentration of the anesthetic vapor and thus promote a smooth anesthesia. This is in direct contrast to ethyl ether, in which a short interruption of administration is of much less consequence. For the same reason, the tip of the dropper should be kept one inch from the mask, in order to decrease the loss of vinethene by evaporation in the air before the drops reach the gauze. All of the vinethene should be vaporized on the mask and none allowed to touch the patient's face. As in all anesthesia, an unobstructed airway is of paramount importance.

Any mask suitable for open drop anesthesia may be used, covered either with a double thickness of stockinet or with eight to ten layers of coarse gauze. Gauze alone may be used in place of a mask. However, the use of gauze alone without a mask may result in skin burn from contact with gauze wet with vinethene. As with ethyl ether, the eyes should be protected with a wet cotton pad. When oral surgery is to be performed, the oral-nasal mask should be replaced by a nasal mask after the induction period and a throat pack inserted to prevent mouth breathing. It is, of course, essential in all cases to permit unobstructed breathing.

The tip of the metal cap on the vinethene container should not be removed. Slight adjustment of this cap will control the rate of flow. During administration, the tip of the cap should be held close to the mask to avoid undue evaporation in the air.

Induction with vinethene is rapid and should be kept uneventful; usually the patient loses consciousness within one minute. For a few seconds, allow the mask to fit loosely, and administer vinethene slowly to acquaint the patient with the odor and to overcome apprehension. Then increase to a rate of from 40 to 60 drops per minute for induction and, subsequently, decrease the rate to the patient's requirement for maintenance. Increased volatility, resulting from high altitude or hot climate, may necessitate a faster rate of administration. Changes in depth of anesthesia occur rapidly and skill is necessary to maintain an even level of anesthesia. The signs of vinethene anesthesia differ from the signs of anesthesia produced by other agents, and experience in the use of vinethene is required to obtain optimal results.

REPORT FROM HEADQUARTERS

ANNE M. CAMPBELL

Executive Secretary

REPORT OF THE TRI-STATE ASSEMBLY OF NURSE ANESTHETISTS

A conference of anesthetists was held May 10-12, 1944, in Chicago in conjunction with the Tri-State Hospital Assembly. The opening meeting was called to order by Mae B. Cameron of Ravenswood Hospital, who then turned the meeting over to Ethel M. Moir of Detroit, President of the Michigan Association of Nurse Anesthetists. Greetings from the Tri-State Hospital Assembly were brought by Malcolm T. MacEachern, M.D., Chairman of the Tri-State Hospital Assembly, from the Illinois Association of Nurse Anesthetists by the President, Anna Willenborg, and from the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists by Anne M. Campbell, Executive Secretary.

Conrad R. Lam, M.D., from Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, Michigan, gave a paper on "Refrigeration as the Anesthetic Agent in Amputation of the Lower Extremities." This was illustrated by motion pictures. Dr. Lam in speaking of the change in attitude regarding heat in cases of shock said that it was possible that harm had been done in the past by maintaining a high temperature and that the latest theory is that a comfortable temperature is best. Reduced temperatures are now being used in local operations and amputations.

Arno B. Luckhardt, M.D., Professor of Physiology at the University of Chicago, gave an illustrated talk entitled "An Adventure in Research," which was a brief history of his discovery of ethylene. Dr. William Crocker, plant physiologist at the University of Chicago, was approached by the Wisconsin carnation growers in 1908 with the request that he make a study to determine why healthy plants withered when brought to Chicago. Dr. Crocker suspected gas leaks in the greenhouse, since gas is noxious and toxic to carnations. Dr. Luckhardt then told of the many experiments he and his assistants conducted in an effort to solve the problem and how their findings prompted further research which eventually led to the discovery that ethylene would anesthetize. The animals recovered rapidly when the ethylene was withdrawn.

World War I interrupted research of this kind. In 1922 Dr. Luckhardt with the assistance of Dr. Bailey Carter resumed his research with the ethylene which was used for welding in the same way that acetylene is used. The commercial ethylene was not refined and they were not aware that it was highly explosive. They anesthetized each other, using crude devices and smoking cigarettes as they worked. At last they succeeded in persuading some Chicago doctors to come to their laboratory and observe the results of the gas on human beings. Subsequently Dr. Luckhardt was invited to anesthetize surgical patients at the Presbyterian Hospital. The results were so satisfactory that the gas is now one generally accepted for anesthesia.

Evelyn Buford of St. Mary's Hospital, Detroit, Michigan, read a paper on "Ethyl Chloride in General Anesthesia," which was published in the May issue of the BULLETIN. Miss Buford stated that ethyl chloride has withstood the test of time, in spite of waves of popularity and disrepute. She stressed its value for short procedures and induction for open drop ether.

Julia Baines, dental anesthetist and newly elected President of the Illinois Association of Nurse Anesthetists, gave a paper on "Nitrous Oxide the Anesthetic of Choice in Dentistry." Mrs. Baines' paper was illustrated by motion pictures of her own cases.

Pauline Benn, President of the Indiana Association of Nurse Anesthetists, presided at the second session, held on Thursday, May 11. George J. Andros, M.D., from the University of Michigan Medical School, presented a paper on "The Nurse Anesthetist in Continuous Caudal Anesthesia in Obstetrics," illustrated by the latest film on "Caudal Anesthesia," shown through the courtesy of Eli Lilly Company. According to Dr. Andros this type of anesthesia is relatively safe and practical under proper conditions and in properly selected cases. The benefits to the mother and child are evident. There are 36,000 successful cases on record with only six deaths. Postgraduate courses are available for doctors and nurses. Complications rarely occur in well-cared-for procedure and with a well-trained person. Special care should be taken in regard to

1. Drop in blood pressure with vasodilation
2. Breakage of needle
3. Infection, particularly superficial skin infections
4. Intraspinal injection.

Capt. Edward B. Tuohy presented a paper on the use of whole blood and blood substitutes.

Charlotte L. Grams of Milwaukee presided at the final meeting on Friday, May 12, introducing A. H. Pember, M.D., F.A.C.S., of the Pember Nuzum Clinic, Janesville, Wisconsin, who spoke on "Anesthesia in the Surgery of Ophthalmology."

Esther E. Edwards of Wausau, Wisconsin, read a paper on "The Nurse Anesthetist Today and Tomorrow." She stated that because of the oversupply of nurses in the past the education of the nurse has been upgraded. Due to the war there is a great lack in personnel, especially of anesthetists.

Mary Lou Byrd, M.D., of Grand Rapids, Michigan, discussed the "Role of the Anesthetist in the Management of the Postoperative Period."

D. E. Clark, Ph.D., of Rahway, N. J., used motion pictures to illustrate his talk on vinethene and its advantages. This paper appears in this issue, pages 109 to 112.

PUBLICITY FOR THE ASSOCIATION

Your attention is called to the letter from the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists which was published on page 594 of the June issue of the American Journal of Nursing. Copies of this letter were sent to all hospital superintendents on the complete mailing list of the American Hospital Association, with the request that it be posted. There has been an increase in the number of letters which make specific inquiries about Schools of Anesthesiology and what a candidate should consider when selecting a school. A number of these letters have mentioned the notice in the American Journal of Nursing.

Mrs. Marguerite Zapoleon, Labor Economist from the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C., called at the office on April 18 in connection with a study which is being made of the opportunities for women, especially as the war and its effects taper off. This study will include an outlook of the future in various occupations. Accompanying the study of the professional fields is a study of women engaged in war work and how many intend to carry on their work after the war is over.

The report, which will be published by the Women's Bureau, should be of help in guiding young women in their choice of future occupation.

YOUR ASSOCIATION

A recently elected state president has drawn the attention of this office to her difficulty in getting members to serve on committees. Organizations such as our national and state associations must depend on volunteer service from their members. The national officers and members of the Board of Trustees and many state officers have expressed the opinion that they have gained a great deal through working for the national or their state associations.

One member of the Board of Trustees says, "I have grown with the organization. Of course, it has taken time and effort, but I have been more than repaid in the experiences I have had."

If you are asked to serve on a committee will you not consider the possible benefits to you, as well as the difficulties of the person asking you to serve, before you refuse? If you have not been asked to serve and are willing to give time and effort for which you will be repaid in proportion to what you put into your committee work, why not let your president know of your willingness to further the work of your association through serving on committees, or wherever your talents or interests may lie? This is an excellent way to become acquainted with other members of the Association, and the Association needs the experience of its older members as well as the enthusiasm of the younger members. There is no age limit on service.

TO THE STATE SECRETARIES

When sending in your reports of state meetings, please include the date and place. The Executive Secretary is not familiar with abbreviations and will appreciate the use of full names rather than abbreviations which mean much to you but nothing to her. Please be specific in reporting on your speakers, giving their titles and the name and address of the hospital or organization with which they are connected.

FLORIDA

The Florida Association of Nurse Anesthetists held its last meeting in Jacksonville. The following matters of business were discussed. Due to the fact that Florida has been holding its state meetings in the fall, the officers carry over until that time. Commencing in 1945 Florida plans to hold its annual meeting in conjunction with the Florida Hospital Association, so that in the future their state officers will be elected at approximately the same time as other state officers. It was voted to contribute five dollars annually to the Library Fund.

There were twelve present at the dinner and round table discussion concerning problems in anesthesia. Lt. Marion J. Saks of Hunter Field, Georgia, who will soon be a Captain, attended the dinner.

ALPHA E. SCHIER
President

GEORGIA

The seventh annual convention of the Georgia Association of Nurse Anesthetists was held concurrently with the annual meeting of the Southeastern Hospital Conference on April 12 and 13, 1944, in Atlanta, Georgia. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the Sheffield Clinic building of the Georgia Baptist Hospital, with twenty-six members present.

The program included papers on "Sodium Pentothal Anesthesia" by Billie Caraway; "Endotracheal Anesthesia in Otorhinolaryngological Surgery" by Mildred Davis; and "Combined Local and General Anesthesia" by Myrtle Rogers. An interesting round table discussion was presided over by Grace M. Rapp, who kept the discussion lively and stimulating. A film in technicolor entitled "Anesthesia at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital" in Detroit, Michigan, was shown. This film was made by Esther Myers Stephenson, through whose courtesy it was obtained.

The social activities included a banquet and dance at the Ansley Hotel, where we were the guests of the Southeastern Hospital Conference, as well as a luncheon at the Capital City Club.

During the past year the anesthetists of Atlanta met monthly in the various hospitals or homes of the members. Since the place of meeting depended upon the invitation of a member, the program was planned by the hostess. The Atlanta anesthetists have found that these meetings stimulate discussion of their common problems and keep them in touch with each other.

MASSACHUSETTS

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Association of Nurse Anesthetists was held at the Gardner House, Children's Hospital, Boston, on May 9, 1944. The meeting was called to order by Betty Lank, President. There were eighteen members present. The Treasurer's report showed a balance of $110.10 in the treasury.

Mrs. Esther Stephenson suggested that there be a definite program regarding post-war problems. After considerable discussion the matter was laid on the table.

Miss MacRae read a letter from Lt. Marion Smith, who is somewhere in Africa, thanking the Association for her Christmas gift.

A letter was read from Mrs. Childress regarding a donation to the Library Fund. Because of the small amount of money in the treasury, it was decided not to do anything about the matter at the present time.

ILLINOIS

The annual business meeting of the Illinois Association of Nurse Anesthetists was held on May 11 at the Palmer House, Chicago, following a meeting of the Tri-State Nurse Anesthetists Assembly. Officers elected are as follows:

Julia Baines, President of the Illinois State Association of Nurse Anesthetists, invited all members to a picnic on Sunday, June 25th, at her home, 1096 Lee Street, Des Plaines. Over twenty attended and there were notes from more than forty others which were posted so that all could read them. The guests played croquet, horse shoes and relay games as well as feeding the chickens and picking cherries. Cherries were not picked on shares—guests took those they picked home with them.

There were penalties for talking about anesthesia or weeds, and prizes for the games. Naturally there was a picnic supper. Rain checks were available and those who were unable to attend are welcome at any time.

MINNESOTA

The Minnesota Association of Nurse Anesthetists held its tenth annual meeting in conjunction with the Minnesota Hospital Association on May 14th at the St. Paul Hotel, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Palma Anderson, President of the Minnesota Association, presiding at the opening meeting, introduced Rev. L. B. Benson, who brought greetings from the Minnesota Hospital Association.

Harry B. Zimmerman, M.D., discussed the Surgeon's views on anesthesia. He admitted that he is afraid of anesthetics and feels that the anesthetic is the surgeon's responsibility. He spoke of the recent technical advances in the field due to discoveries which now make it possible to perform operations taking a longer time. He thinks the future medical anesthetist will find it difficult to get along without the nurse anesthetist.

Dr. Zimmerman feels that the more the nurse anesthetist makes an art of anesthesia, the better. She does not have the background to make a science of it and that is the province of the scientists and medical anesthesiologists. He stated that in his opinion the nurse anesthetist can give a smooth, easy and safe anesthetic.

"Curare in Anesthesia" was the title of the paper given by Joe W. Baird, M.D. He thinks curare promises to be one of the big things in anesthesia, from what is known of it to date. He has seen no bad effects from it. He sketched the history of the medicinal use of curare, the South American Indian poison, from 1938, when McGill organized an expedition to gather the crude drug. McGill was seeking a drug for the treatment of spastic diseases. The Squibb Company fostered the expedition and has developed curare as we know it today.

Bennett, a neurologist of Omaha, Nebraska, gave curare in 1940, as a preliminary to insulin shock. The drug had not been standardized, therefore the use of it was a matter of guesswork. He felt the patients did not have as violent convulsions following its use. He got the effect of metrazol shock without violent convulsions.

The Squibb Company approached Dr. Harold Griffith of Montreal, asking him to use curare in his operations. In 1940 Dr. Griffith published a series of twenty-five cases in which he had used it. Dr. Cullen of Iowa City then took it up and used it with enthusiasm. Dr. Griffith used it when relaxation was needed in "tough" situations, whereas Dr. Cullen used it routinely.

Curare in itself has no anesthetic properties and must be used with an anesthetic agent. Because of its flexibility cyclopropane is the anesthetic of choice in combination with curare. It is possible to "bring them up or put them down" and plenty of oxygen should always be available. The drug has no central action but interrupts nerve impulses at the myoneural junction, affecting the skeletal muscles in the following order—neck, extremities, abdomen, intercostal and diaphragm. Then comes apnea and respiratory paralysis. The action time is unknown but the muscles "come back in reverse order." The user must be prepared to combat the period of apnea. The ability of the anesthetist to give artificial respiration is important, if the drug is to be used. A gas machine should always be available.

Curare gives relaxation without putting the patient in deep anesthesia. The patient is kept "just asleep" in order to abolish pain. Three c.c. given intravenously acts within forty-five to sixty seconds. Relaxation is complete by the time the peritoneum is open. With curare there is no shock as in the deep stages of anesthesia. It is also beneficial when the surgeon wishes to close the abdomen.

Curare is not a cure-all and its use is never a substitute for ability. The first requisite is a good inhalation anesthesia. It may replace spinal anesthesia because it is possible to get as complete relaxation without any drop in blood pressure. Squibb's trade name for this product is "intocetrin."

Dr. M. W. Alberts of St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Paul, presented a paper on "Medical Care—The American Way" in which he stated that medicine is not primarily a science but a social service and every man is entitled to the best it has to offer. Dr. Ralph Knight from the University of Minneapolis discussed "Important Factors in Intravenous Anesthesia."

At the afternoon session Dr. J. A. Heidbrink talking on "Development of Anesthesia Equipment" described his personal experiences as a dentist and as a patient, which led to his experimentation with and development of the Heidbrink gas machines.

Anne M. Campbell, Executive Secretary, talked about her travels in Denmark.

Rev. L. B. Benson presided at the Allied General Session on Tuesday afternoon. Papers were presented by members of the ten allied groups. Anne M. Campbell spoke on "Our National Organization" giving a brief resumé of the history of the organization, its aims, and objective.

The principal speaker at the annual convention banquet was Captain Paul Rush of Camp Savage, Minnesota. Captain Rush spent six months in a Japanese internment camp prior to his exchange and return on the Gripsholm at the same time Ambassador Grew returned. He warned that Japan does not know the meaning of the word defeat, that everything is sacrificed by civilians for the army. Civilians are living on a bare subsistence level and will live on sub-subsistence level, if necessary to win the war. Because of the philosophy of the Japanese, it will be necessary for us to carry the war to Japan and defeat them on their own territory.

There are thirty-four active members in North Carolina. No meeting was held in the spring of 1944, due to the shortage of gasoline and the congestion in traveling. It is hoped that there will be a meeting in the fall. Addie F. Medlin is carrying on the work of President, Secretary and Treasurer with the help of a Membership Committee.

UTAH

The last meeting of the Utah Association of Nurse Anesthetists was held at the Thomas D. Dee Memorial Hospital in Ogden, Utah. A supper was served by the hospital before the meeting, at which Dr. Scott Smith presented a paper on "Curare." Since Dr. Smith has used intocostarin with good results, he was able to present his own conclusions in regard to its use. A short business meeting followed the talk.

A meeting of the Board of Trustees was held June 5th at the Latter Day Saints Hospital, Salt Lake City. The letter from the Texas Association concerning the proposed eventual National Examination for Certification and Registration of Anesthetists was discussed. The trustees felt that the Certification Program should be put into effect without delay. A letter to this effect was sent to the Texas Association.

The National Library Membership was also discussed and it was decided to withhold participation for the present. One factor in this was the distance between the states.

The Tennessee Association held no annual meeting. As was stated before, the meetings have been cancelled for the duration of the war. A Trustee was appointed to fill the vacancy left by Dorothy Daffin, transferred to California.

A note from Lelia Dill of Nashville, from Italy: "We have a lovely little hospital in Italy, a beautiful building in a nice location. We keep seven anesthetists busy. I am the Chief Anesthetist here and at present have two students, one nurse and one corpsman. We use sodium pentothal mostly and like it very much. However, we do not have a great deal of endotracheal ether and pentothal inductions. We have three portable Heidbrink machines and plenty of oxygen tanks with the B.L.B. masks and Forreger Endo Sets. We enjoy the Bulletin when it arrives."

ALABAMA

The annual meeting of the Alabama Association of Nurse Anesthetists was held on June 28th, 1944, in the Green Room, Hotel Thomas Jefferson, Birmingham. Mrs. Elsie Owens Long, the President, presided.

Following a dinner, Major John Graham of the Birmingham Air Base, Birmingham, Alabama, spoke on "The Treatment of Shock." He also discussed the type of anesthesia used in war surgery.

It was voted to contribute annually to the proposed lending library for nurse anesthetists.

WASHINGTON

The Washington State Association of Nurse Anesthetists held its sixth annual meeting on April 19, 1944, at Providence Hospital, Everett, Washington. Twenty-six members answered roll call. A paper entitled "The Nurse Anesthetist in Relation to the Hospital" was presented by the secretary at a joint session of our Association with the Washington Hospital Association. Members were guests of the Hospital Association at a most delightful luncheon and supper. A particularly interesting feature of the meeting was an address on "Aviation Medicine" by Col. Wessels of Paine Field. Extensive discussion and questions followed this very instructive paper.

The Washington Association of Nurse Anesthetists is publishing a bulletin which has met with a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. There was much interest in the "Certification" question and Washington is for it one hundred per cent.

By unanimous vote it was decided to retain the following officers for another year:

President

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSE ANESTHETISTS

Due to the ill health of your President, Mrs. Rosalie McDonald, and subsequent resignation, the Vice-President took over the duties of this office on February 1st, 1944. Since that time the Board has held two meetings and the Executive Committee one meeting in a supreme effort to promote the work for which it is responsible.

A few of the problems and policies which must be decided by your voice and vote as a member of this organization are: revision of the by-laws, examination program for the admission of applicants to membership, post-war planning, standardization of schools, and training of instructors.

As members of this Association, your chairman makes on behalf of the Board of Trustees, an appeal to every member, who can possibly be spared from her heavy duties, to attend the annual meeting, October 2 to 6 in Cleveland. The hospitals throughout the country are aware of the need for the services of the nurse anesthetist and they will, without doubt, cooperate in sending the members to this meeting so that you can be instrumental in helping the Association provide even greater assistance to your respective hospitals.

You can materially expedite the business of the Association if you will make individual preparation in the following ways:

- (1) All members to study carefully the revised by-laws as printed in this issue and bring them to the meeting with any parts underscored which you would like to have discussed.
- (2) All chairmen of committees to make plans to meet with the chairman of the Board. The time to be announced later.
- (3) All directors of schools and teachers to attend the instructors' session, for the development of the educational program is of vital importance.
- (4) All members to cast their vote for the officers who will serve them in the coming year.

Unless the Office of Transportation prohibits and forces the cancellation of fall organizational meetings, this chairman hopes to have the opportunity of greeting the greatest number of members ever registered at an annual meeting.

HAZEL BLANCHARD, Acting Chairman
Board of Trustees

June 20, 1944

Miss Hazel Blanchard
Samaritan Hospital
Troy, N. Y.

Dear Miss Blanchard:

I hope this letter reaches you in time for you to present the contents to the members of the Board at the meeting in New York Sunday.

Upon the advice of my physician I request that you fill my unexpired term of office as President of the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists. Also, I shall be unable to serve as a member of the Board of Trustees following the expiration of my term of office as President. I regret that I shall not be able to attend the annual convention in Cleveland in October.

I greatly appreciate your taking over my duties and think you are doing a much better job than I could have done. I hope that you will have a successful Board meeting in New York and that the convention in Cleveland will be the best one ever.

I shall send the President's file to you as soon as I hear from you.

With kind regards, I am,

Sincerely yours,

ROSALIE McDONALD

Comfort During Oxygen Therapy

The intranasal oropharyngeal catheter technique is frequently used for oxygen administration following operations, in treating pneumonia and certain types of heart disease, and for many other conditions . . . when especially high oxygen concentrations are not necessary.

When this catheter technique is used, certain basic procedures should be followed to make the patient comfortable. First . . . and very important . . . the catheter must be inserted carefully and positioned correctly; second, the catheter must then be firmly taped to keep it from slipping; and third, the oxygen must be properly humidified.

The LINDE OXYGEN THERAPY HANDBOOK includes complete descriptions of nasal catheter and other types of oxygen therapy equipment and the accepted operating techniques. Write for a copy. There is no charge.
